

BIODIESEL TESTIMONIAL

CUMBERLAND COUNTY

The Cumberland County Board of Commissioners announced that all county transportation department buses will be fuelled with Biodiesel. Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff walks away after operating the excavator behind him. "I've operated a lot of farm equipment, but nothing this large," said Wolff. The excavator, owned by Gleim Excavating, runs on Biodiesel.

Cumberland County leaders have long wanted to power the county's 30 or so transportation department buses with environmentally friendly Biodiesel fuel.

"It's up to our generation to start using the renewable fuels we have right now, in our home state, to do the right thing for our children and grandchildren," company head John W. Gleim Jr. said during a news conference attended by county and state officials, including Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Dennis Wolff.
